

Pep Likes to Mix

illustrated by Haikal

Pep is getting ready for the street parade.

He loves to slap paint
around, and he sets to work on his float.

Oops!

Pep tips over all the paint tins.

But he really likes
how all the colours
have mixed and
made new colours.

New colours have formed like purple pink and orange yellow. They are all over the wall and that gives pep an idea.

He starts to mix
more colours.

He enjoys how the paints change.

He likes it so much
on the wall, that he starts mixing colours
all over his house.

When he looks outside,
Pep sees that the whole town is boring
white and brown.

So, he starts to fix that.

A red hut here!

A yellow roof there!

The others in the town
are not happy with Pep's mixed paints
splashed over the houses.

But he can't stop.

He mixes blue and red to paint a door purple, even when his friend tells him to stop.

They all get so cross
they chase him up the hill, leaving coloured prints up the path.

When his friends get to the top, Pep tells them to turn around and look back at the town.

Maybe Pep was right.

The whole town looks bright now, ready for a fun
street parade.
