

Rock and a feather

A rock has more
mass than a feather.

The rock has heft to it. It can hold its shape.

A rock is a bit
like an elephant.

The feather does not have a lot
of mass.

How much mass does
the rock have?

This man has a set of scales!

They fill a flask to be
one kilogram.

Will the scales tilt to the cows or
the dogs?
To the cows.

How much mass does
the world have?

A lot more
flasks than this!

5,974,000,000,000,000

You need a lot of feathers to have a kilogram.

The background is a watercolor illustration of a rainy sky. It features a teal and light blue color palette with soft, painterly textures. Several white, fluffy clouds are scattered across the scene. Numerous raindrops of various sizes are depicted falling, some as simple black outlines and others with a light blue fill. The overall mood is calm and atmospheric.

A drop of water
does not have much mass.

He can find out his own mass as well!

Bookbot books are free, high quality decodable readers based on the order of sounds introduced by the Bookbot Scope & Sequence.

We're delighted to offer them to you to download and print at no cost. But it would be great if you could link to our page www.bookbotkids.com/free-books from your school's website so others can enjoy our free books.

We believe in creating an extensive library of decodable readers to inspire and bring confidence to children learning to read. You can find out about our mission at www.bookbotkids.com.
