

YUM!

Illustrated By Lá Studio

It is time to pick the mangoes on our farm! If we do not pick them in time, the insects will get to them.

We have a lot of mango trees. We need to work hard to pluck them all while they are ripe. This is how we make our money.

We scale the trees and pick the mangoes one by one. Gran is too old to go up the trees now, but she makes sure that we are safe.

We have a mango picnic for lunch. Gran has cut them up for us. I like to chew on the skin and the seed as well.

Back to work. Our friends come to help. We will send some mangoes home with them in a basket as a thank you.

We load the mangoes into baskets and send them down. Then we sort them on a blanket. We will sell some for cheap and some for more money.

Dad packs the mangoes up in the truck and we drive down to the market. We put out our blanket and start to sell them.

We also load them in our boat and float out onto the river. We swap our mangoes for other kinds of fruit.

I love mangoes.

It is hard work to pick and sell them, but it is worth it. I want to be a farmer just like Dad and Gran.
